Peace is not when everyone agrees. It is when we can respect our disagreements and still play in the sandbox together.

“ Dorothy was my mother’s sister. My mom, Jane Carter Buchanan, my dad, John Buchanan and myself were all saddened to hear of Aunt Dorothy’s death. Due to their age and health as well the COVID situation, they were not able see each other in person recently. Mom and Dorothy spoke on the phone often. The last time was when Mom called her on her birthday. Her caregiver held the phone so Mom could tell her sister that she loved her. The caregiver said she brightened up for a short time after the conversation. I remember the time I spent, as a child, in Sandy Hook. Aunt Dorothy always treated like I was her own. Aunt Dorothy had a tough past few years. First her brother, then her husband and daughter. I can only imagine what a joyous reunion has occurred. May her soul Rest In Peace.
